THE FERNIE PRIZE BAND

The orchestra, under the direction of F. Vernon, played for the Theatre Guild on their presentation of three one-act plays in the Grand Theatre on Wednesday evening, Feb. 9th, before the rise of the curtain and between each act and at the close of the show. By the way, the large audience applauded the orchestra after each number played, it would appear that their efforts are being well appreciated. Although the city of Fernie is not nearly as well off as many towns much larger, it can boast of a band of 31 pieces and a concert orchestra which is now bordering on a little symphony orchestra with 43 members. Mr. Vernon would like to see many more girls or ladies in the orchestra to make it more evenly balanced as far as sex is concerned. There are now just five young ladies in the orchestra—Ferne Free Press.

ADVERTISING POWER

That an advertisement in the columns of the local paper has remarkable drawing power was exemplified week before last, states the Grande Prairie Herald.
A resident of Red Deer district owned a house and lot in Grande Prairie. He wanted to sell them, so invested a small sum in a "for sale" in our classified column. In less than forty-eight hours, thirty-eight telegrams were sent to the property owner, and naturally the property was quickly sold.

THOMAS JOHNSON KILLED AT ROSEDALE

Thomas Johnson, who met death in the Cambrian mine at Rosedale Ferry on Tuesday morning of last week, was a son of a former resident and chairman of the school board at Coleman. He was born in Lancashire, England, and served with the Imperial army during the Great War, joining the ranks at the age of sixteen. He came to Canada seventeen years ago, and to Drumheller five years later. He was a member of the Canadian Legion. He is survived by his wife and one son, Howard, at Drumheller; his mother in British Columbia, and a brother, Fred, at East Coulee. His father passed away at the coast a year ago. He followed occupation as a freeman, and met his death accidentally by a shot placed approximately 75 feet down the wall from the airway. The presence of the shot is believed to have been unknown to Johnson, who accidentally walked on to it.
The remains were laid to rest at Drumheller.

DRIVERS WARNED UNDER NEW PLAN

Safety measures for highways traffic continue to occupy the attention of provincial authorities across Canada. As the volume of tourist traffic increases and hard surfacing of highways is extended, the demands for safe driving become all the more insistent.
A system of warning drivers has just been brought into operation in the province of Ontario.
There the motorist will be given a warning by the police, whether a summons is to be issued or not. There are many borderline cases, such as minor infractions of motor vehicle regulations, that will be covered by this regulation.
One copy of the warning will go to provincial police headquarters and the other to the department of highways.
If the same driver is warned on one highway and later by another officer in a different section of the province, the two warnings will appear upon the record.
When three minor offences accumulate, the driver's license may be suspended, or he may be forced to undergo an examination as to his fitness.
A similar system has been adopted in New Brunswick, while British Columbia is embarking upon a system of examining all 200,000 drivers in that province as to their qualifications.
Measures that will bring about safer driving have been given the strong endorsement of officials of the Alberta Motor Association, which is campaigning for reduction of the accident toll in this province.
Charles McCarthy, 54, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCarthy, of Raymond, died at Portland, Oregon. He had operated a hotel at Raymond for many years.
Speeding to Honolulu to reach the bedside of his sister, Margaret Avery, who is critically ill, Arthur Avery, owner and publisher of the Taber Times, boarded the China Clipper at San Francisco on Wednesday, accompanied by his mother. Miss Avery left Taber shortly before Christmas for a holiday trip to Hawaii, and was taken suddenly ill in Honolulu.

Two men, giving the names of Eldon Kelly and William Goddes, who surrendered to police at Ponoka following a broadcast description of the likely murderers of Fred Oliver, a night watchman at an Edmonton garage, and who claimed they might answer the description, were released on an investigation of them at Edmonton on Monday morning. The real culprits are still at large.

BLAIRMORE JUVENILES DEFEAT LETHBRIDGE

Following is the Lethbridge Herald's comment on the juvenile hockey contest held at the Blaimore arena on Friday night last:
Playing in Blaimore last night, the powerful, fast-skating juveniles from that Pass town, got sweet revenge for the 5-3 pasting they received in Lethbridge a few weeks ago, when they handed the Lethbridge Junior Hockey Association's juveniles an artistic 6-2 lacing. The Pass sextet deserved to win on the night's play and there wasn't any doubt about that. For two whole periods they hemmed their Lethbridge opponents behind their own blue line, and rained rubber at Don Kirkham.
This incessant five-man offensive gave the Lethbridge squad plenty of opportunity for breakaways, but at the end of the second session they had netted only one goal, while Blaimore had chalked up five.
But, in the final session, the association's juveniles came to life, and with the play much evened, the game became more thrilling. Both clubs missed many perfect opportunities to score, especially the Lethbridge crew, in this last period. For Lethbridge, little Stewart, smart left-winger, was always boring in, and he was unlucky not to score on more than one occasion.
The crowd was brought to their feet in the last session by a display of stickwork from Moss, smart Lethbridge defenceman, and Rae, Blaimore wingman. The two battlers tore into each other hammer-and-tongs, and for a few moments it looked as though a donnybrook might ensue, as other players began to join in the melee, but Referee McPhail had the game well in hand, and nothing further developed.
Zak, Blaimore right winger, was poison to the Lethbridge crew. He was right on the job last night, to score half his team's six goals. Allan was also dangerous, and two smart goals were also placed to his credit.
The Lethbridge crew, when they got back into the fight in the third period, really stormed in on the Blaimore nets, but Olson was playing a smart game, and held them out until, in the dying moments, Slavich and McColl broke through the Pass defence, and Slavich caught the corner with a whistling drive after taking a perfect pass from McColl.
The game was very fast throughout, and was a very good exhibition of juvenile hockey. McPhail was the only official in last night's contest, but his officiating was of the first calibre.

WATCH OUT FOR DIVIDENDS!

Another startling effort to monetize the credit of the province of Alberta is shortly to be undertaken by the Social Credit government, it is declared on reliable sources at Edmonton.
The scheme, said to have been worked out under the suggestion and direction of J. D. Byrne, $6,000-a-year technical advisor to the Social Credit Board, proposes the issuance of provincial bonds of various denominations, conforming to ordinary currency, which would be circulated as credit instruments, such bonds to bear no interest, and be redeemable upon demand by the provincial treasurer.
Four million dollars of such bonds may be issued.

AN ASSESSOR'S LIFE IS NOT A HAPPY ONE

R. A. Burford, general accountant in the New York office of the C.P.R., takes an interest in civic affairs. As a reward for that interest, fellow citizens in the village in which he lives have elected him chairman of the Board of Assessors. Of the appointment, Mr. Burford says: "After the assessment roll is made up each fall, all you get is brick-bats thrown at you" and, "as to its value in personal popularity, that is another matter."
Years ago, according to a clipping from the New York Sun, the assessor's job was somewhat different. The clipping reproduces a handbill, now in the possession of the Westchester Historical Society, and reads:
"The Assessment List of this Village and Township is at my House on Lexington Avenue, where it may be seen by any of the Taxpayers who desire to do so. If any Assessment is not satisfactory I will make it suit for a fair consideration."
"Should any of my friends not have the cash readily, any kind of Provisions, Clothing or good Bourbon Whiskey, not below proof, will be taken in trade. Please do not approach me upon the Sabbath Day, except before or after Divine Service, as I am a leading Member of the Church."
"As ever true to the traditions of this Glorious Republic as founded by our illustrious Fathers and the immortal Washington, I remain your devoted servant. ELIJAH KUREDY, Chairman and Engineer-in-Chief of the Board of Assessors."
"Dated August 12, 1883."
Asked if he had a similar notice in contemplation, Mr. Burford pointed out that times have changed and he "would likely end up in the house-gown."

Kimberley defeated the Lethbridge Maple Leafs 6-5 in an overtime game at Kimberley on Tuesday night. Kimberley and Lethbridge will open their best out of three series for the Kootenay Hockey League eastern division championship at Kimberley on Tuesday next, February 22nd. If a third game is necessary, it will be played at Lethbridge on Saturday the 26th.

FORD - HUGHSON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Luke's Anglican church on Saturday, February the 12th, at 3 p.m., when Clara Lehma, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hughson, of Blaimore, became the bride of Lawrence Ford, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Ford, of Coleman, Rev. A. S. Partington officiating.
The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march. She wore a dress of white satin, floor length, with silver accessories, and the conventional veil, held by a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of carnations and roses.
Miss Anna Hughson, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid. She wore a flowered georgette dress, with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of Spring flowers.
The groom's gift to the bride was a rope of pearls.
After the ceremony the wedding party adjourned to the home of the bride's parents, where a very pleasing reception was held. Only relatives and immediate friends being present. After luncheon, the toast to the bride was given by Rev. Mr. Partington, which was ably responded to by the groom.
The happy young couple will take up residence in Coleman.

ALICE STEVENS' RECIPES

GOOD BOOKS AND PICTURES HELP CHILD'S DEVELOPMENT

A two-year-old child usually enjoys picture-books and the simplest story books about objects and events in his every-day life. He likes books about airplanes, engines, cars, boats and children.

A four-year-old child still likes picture books but he is hungry for stories, stories of his immediate experiences such as the working of the concrete mixer where the new sidewalk is being laid or the freezing of the ice-cream for supper.

A seven, eight or nine-year-old accepts and enjoys fairy tales and also true stories that have vigor and achievement. At this age, he usually knows that in the real world beauty does not talk and gingerbread boys do not jump out of the pan and run away.

Children's books should be beautifully written and illustrated and attractive as to paper, print and binding. They should be substantial enough to stand the wear and tear of handling.

Add corn syrup to candy to prevent it going grainy.

Use very few spices and flavorings in cooking apples. Try to develop the natural flavor of the apples.

One teaspoon soda and two teaspoons cream of tartar equal four teaspoons baking powder.

Readers are invited to write to Alice Stevens, Home Service for free advice on home cooking and household problems. Address letters to Winnipeg Newsprint Union, 370 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

FLIN FLON

"The Story of Its Finding and Position To-day"

By PRATT KUBIN

Continuing the story of Island Falls, where the electric power comes from.

The thing that interested me, however, was the conquering of the wild, the erection of 356 steel towers carrying power 60 miles, and the line patrolmen who live with their families at mile 13 and mile 38. These men walk steadily, examining the conditions of wires, posts, possible dangerous fires, etc., and report by telephone from one of the eight telephone boxes on the route. Occasionally they can hitch-hike a ride on a boat going down the lakes and walk back. At mile 13 a wood pole, single circuit, aluminum cable line 40 miles long, taps off through air-brake switches to feed the Sherritt-Gordon mine.

I asked the patrolmen, both of whom I met by good luck, if they weren't lonely, but mile 13 is close enough to Flin Flon to have visitors, and at mile 38 they are lonely only in summer, while in winter they feed teamsters twice a day—men hauling supplies to Island Falls over the ice.

This supply business is mighty important because you can't run down to the corner store for something forgotten, and you must have a year's supply on hand at all times. In winter, then, about 200 tons, valued at $30,000 to $50,000 of stock and provisions are hauled in and stored in warehouses for non-perishable food stuffs. There is a heated room for the storage of freezable foods, and an ammonia refrigerating plant maintains cold storage for packing house provisions.

Believe me, I ate beef in July that had been brought in the previous December and it was better than you'd buy in the city, because every chop, roast, chicken, etc., is government inspected then wrapped separately in Cellophane, quick frozen and kept that way till the housewife gets it.

The company store is excellently equipped and carries a very good branded line of drugs, cosmetics, canned goods, silk stockings, etc., and most of the work around the mine is done by the Indians, who, like city prices, despite the cost of hauling and storage.

Some part of the stock consisted of unknown lines to me, but was for trading with the Indians, a town of Crees (Roman Catholics) being established on the mainland three miles away, where men folk do logging and brush work around the properties. There are about 30 employed, and who are entitled to buy at the company store at the same prices the white residents pay. This is some difference to the way it used to be when the Indian was a dealer for the white trader. However, all through my studies I was deeply impressed with how the company went out of their way to treat employees fairly, and with the satisfaction expressed by the men and women workers both here and in Flin Flon.

Getting up to Island Falls from Flin Flon was easy. I took a taxi to Channing flying field, six miles away, stepped into an Arrow Airways plane with Jeff Home-Hay as pilot, and in 40 minutes descended on the water at the dam and taxi to the wharf. Getting back I wanted to see the water route, so started out at 8:45 a.m. from the store where all the passengers gather and walked to Sawdust Bay. There outdoor ducks were placed on two canoes, across Sandy Bay, 3½ miles to a half mile portage at Muddy Lake, where a Linn tractor pulled a wagon with the freight, and passengers walked.

ARTICLE No. 28

The Cancer Campaign

The campaign against cancer undertaken by the Canadian Medical Association, with the aid of the King's fund, recalls one of the same nature now being carried on in Belgium. In this connection the secretary of, and moving spirit in, the Belgium society for combating cancer, Doctor Schraenen, well-known to many in this country, declares that the object of the campaign in Belgium was to give the best possible treatment to the greatest number of patients at the earliest possible stage of the disease.

"In order to achieve this idea," says Dr. Schraenen, "the following demands must be met: The public should have a basic knowledge of the nature of cancer, know what methods existed for fighting it, and above all must be persuaded of the importance of their own co-operation in this struggle. The diagnosis of cancer," he went on to say, "must be so organized that the disease might be recognized as early as possible. Opportunities for suitable early treatment should be assured. For subsequent treatment there must be a service of supervision and also a social cancer welfare organization devoting itself to the economic and psychological consequences of cancer for the patient and his family."

Dr. Schraenen pointed out that the measures required were the special scientific training of medical students in relation to cancer; a constant re-awakening of interest among practicing physicians, by means of courses on the subject, by post-graduate lectures; close co-operation between physicians and anti-cancer centres, in a word, by tackling the practical side of the question.

Belgium is well organized to cope with the cancer plague. The centres for diagnosis and treatment of cancer are among the best to be found in Europe. The organization for preventive work is not surpassed anywhere. In every phase of effort against cancer Canada can learn something from the heroic little Kingdom on the North Sea.

CHOOSING COMPANIONS IN SERVICE

Golden text: For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother. Mark 3:35.

Lesson: Mark 3:7-19, 21-35.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 55:1-11.

Explanations And Comments
Increasing Popularity of Jesus, Mark 3:7-12. Jesus and his disciples withdrew to the Sea of Galilee where great crowds sought him, coming not only from Galilee but from Judea and even from Idumea and other sections east of the Jordan and from the region about Tyre and Sidon on the Phoenician seacoast, all drawn to him by the fame of his deeds of healing and exorcism. So eager were the importunate people to touch him (for they believed that a touch would heal) that he was forced to escape from the shore in a boat.

The Setting Apart of Twelve as Companions in Service, Mark 3:13-19. The time had come for Jesus to have a definite body of intimate associates whom he could teach and prepare to carry on his mission. It was somewhere on the range of hills west of Capernaum and the lake side that Jesus gathered together the men whom he had chosen, "that they might be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach, to have authority to cast out demons." "Ye did not choose me, but I chose you," Jesus told them in that last discourse with them (John 15:16), "and appointed you, that ye should go and bear fruit, and that your fruit should abide."

The Friendship that Excludes All Others, Mark 3:20-35. There came his mother and his brethren and, standing without, they sent unto him, calling him. When Jesus was told by the crowd around him that his mother and his brethren were without seeking him, he replied, "Who is my mother and my brethren?" Then looking about upon those that sat round him, he said, "These are my brethren, who do the Father's will."

"Please show Mr. Punder out." Punder stood there, looking more bull-like than ever.

"Do you want to be shown out, or thrown out?" said Ernest. "I give you ten seconds to decide which."

He pulled out his dollar watch.

"I'll go," said Punder. "But mark my words, I'll be back. Hah!"

He jammed his silk hat on his head and strode out of the room, snizzling. When he had gone the earl said, "I didn't take to him very much, do you?"

"Father," said Rosa, "I'm frightened."

"But why, my dear? The bogyman has gone. And did young Ernest heard the lion? I'll say he did. Nice lion-hearing, Ernest, my boy."

"But, father," said Rosa, "you don't know Punder."

"We've met."

"You don't realize what a spiteful, ruthless, unscrupulous man he is," she said. "I've heard stories about him. Getting his own way is an obsession with him. Now we've got his back up, and a Punder never forgets. When he says he'll be back, he means he'll be back, and in spite of what our family crest reads, we are really prepared to fight a powerful brute like Punder!"

"Oh, he was bluffing," said the earl.

"No, he wasn't," said Rosa. "He'll be back."

"Let him come," said the earl. "I forgot to ask him how the deuce they pack stuffed olives in bottles so that all their little red noses press against the glass."

"We've made a cruel en-cy-ay," Rosa said.

"And I'm afraid I'm to blame," said Ernest, who, having discharged his blast of temper, felt a bit empty and apprehensive.

"Nonsense," said the earl. "You made a sporting gesture. I was afraid for a moment you were going through with it."

"So was I," said Rosa.

"But will he do anything, do you think, sir?" asked Ernest.

"He may. Pelt us with pickles, or something like that," said the earl, unperturbed. "But we should worry what? Are we Bingleys or are we bobolinks?"

CHAPTER VI

If, for the thing seemed more than possible, Ernest Bingley had awakened to find himself not in a blemished bed in a castle in Somersetshire but in his own spartan cot in his lowly study, surrounded by odds and ends of owls and others, it would have been a disappointment, but hardly a surprise. For five incredible days he had been master of the demesne (at a price); but the castle and those who dwelled therein still had a mirage-like quality for him. Momentarily he expected Lady Rosa to turn into a white dove before his bewitched eyes, and fly away, life kept stealing secret glances at the earl to detect signs that that nobleman was becoming a kobold after the protean fashion of the chameleon characters that populated the dream-world. At intervals Ernest inflicted on his own person a rather painful pinch, an act which did not go unnoticed by Crump, or undiscussed in the servants' hall.

"Pinches himself," said he," commented Mrs. Featherby, as she went about her culinary chores. "Well, that's his privilege. He can pinch himself till he's all over black spots like a leopard, so long as he does not try to pinch me."

"Nevertheless and notwithstanding," said Crump, "I consider such conduct unbecoming in a millionaire, if such he be, which I still beg leave to doubt. If you could see his underwear, Mrs. Featherby—"

"Mr. Crump! Please! You forget yourself!"

"So very sorry, Mrs. Featherby. I wish I could forget myself."

He released an out-side sigh.

"I know what you're going through," said the earl. "But we must bear our crosses, as it remarked when the late Mr. P. passed to his reward."

"Let's not talk of my loss now," said Crump. "If you don't mind. The past is past. It's the future that worries me now. Did you know that I am psychic?"

"Are you really, Mr. Crump? The late Mr. P. saw things, but that was after a spell of drinking."

"I," said Crump, "am not a drinking man. And I do not see things. I have premonitions."

"Dear me, how dreadful," said Mrs. Featherby. "A nice cup of tea now—"

"Thank you. But even tea, Mrs. Featherby, will not quiet my fears. I suspect dirty work at the cross-roads, and dirtier to come. And I hate to see the family put upon."

"So do I, and then so kind and all," said the earl. "Is he planning to murder them in their beds do you think?"

"What I'm afraid of," said Crump, glumly, "is that the day is not far off when they'll have no beds to be murdered in."

"Then you think he is up to some jiggery-pokery?"

"Downright tidily-bodily, Mrs. Featherby," said Crump.

"Of what sort?"

"Ah! I think. 'That remains to be seen.'"

"I can plain he's a bit potty," Mrs. Featherby said, "but he does not seem like a wrong-un. I've always found him civil-spoken and quiet, I must say."

"Ah!" said Crump, and packed a world of meaning into the sound.

"Those quiet ones! The lion stalking its prey is quiet enough, Mrs. Featherby, or so I am informed. But if you'd seen what I saw—"

"What did you see, Mr. Crump?"

"The real lion," said Crump, darkly.

"When? Where?"

"It was the day that Punder person was here," he answered. "Our millionaires, granting for the sake of argument he is one, shewed his claws and teeth then I can tell you. He pitched into Punder and told him off properly. Yes, he showed lots of lion. I must say I had to like him for it, in a way. It takes pluck to tackle a Punder."

"I must. Poor dear Stanley—I refer to my late husband—worked in one of Punder's jam factories. He was treated outrageous, and though Stanley loved a good fight, especially when on the drink, he never dared tackle Punder."

"I find myself wishing," Crump said, "that our millionaire really is one, but it takes more believing than I can manage. There's something as fishy as a mess of haddock about him; and I'm considered a good judge of men."

"And women?" asked Mrs. Featherby, with a coy smile.

"And women," replied Crump, returning it with interest.

"Is he an old lag do you think?" said Mr. Crump. "But I don't say he's a millionaire, either. He's got his ways, and he is not posted on the usages of society."

"Things are different in the States, my sister writes me," said the earl. "Shouldn't wonder if at home he lives in a wigwag."

"I wish—," began Crump, and paused, the wish unuttered.

"Tell me your wish," coaxed the earl.

"Father not."

"Has it anything to do with me?" she asked, archly.

"No," he said. "I mean we'll take that up later. Just now we are discussing that foreign party. My wish is that he is all he represents himself to be. It would solve a lot of the family's problems, Mrs. Featherby."

"Could it not," said the earl. "I'd rather see almost anybody, even an American, marry that sweet lamb than old Frostyphus the Knuckler-cracker."

"My dear Mrs. Featherby," said Crump, "you have been in service here too short a time to speak in no flippant a fashion of a member of one of our oldest county families."

"But that's what all the servants call him," she said. "And besides, it is just between you and me, Cecil."

She accompanied her first use of his first name with so coquettish a look that Crump, hardened bachelor that he was, went shrim-pink. She followed up her advantage.

"You don't like him yourself, Cecil. Own up."

Crump set down his tea-cup.

"My like or dislike of Captain Duff-Cooper is, to him, I dare say, a matter of complete indifference," Crump said. "As a gentleman and a guest in this house he is entitled to receive and does receive from me my best and most respectful service. But," he added, suddenly dropping his drawing-room tone, "between you and me and that rolling-pin, my dear Sylvia, I detect the big bluster."

"Another cup of tea, Cecil?"

"Thank you so much, Sylvia, but I must decline. Duty calls. But we must have another little chat in the not too distant future."

"The pleasure will be mutual, Cecil," she said.

"Till then, Sylvia," said Crump, and, with a languishing look, he left her.

Crump's tour of inspection to see if the dusting had been done diligently took him to the library. At first he did not notice Ernest, sunk in a sofa and ambushed behind a dense book, a history of the part played by sundry staid Bingleys in the Wars of the Roses, one of the few tomes about the exploits of his clan with which he was not familiar.

Ernest saw Crump first, saw a look of indignation on a visage which was, usually, as expressionless as a trout.

"Beg pardon, sir," said Crump. "I was not aware you were here. I thought you were in the potting-shed with his lordship."

"I was there," said Ernest, emerging from the middle ages. "But I'm not there now. I'm here."

He was never at his best with Crump. The butler was invariably polite and obliging, but had a way of looking askance at Ernest which was most disconcerting. Ernest, by nature as sensitive as a sun-burned poet, suspected that Crump suspected him of skulduggery.

Statement Is Wrong

Churches Are Not Empty As Many People Assume

A familiar comment in these days is that the churches are empty. Such comment could hardly have been written by anyone who has attended a church service, or even arisen early enough on a Sunday morning to pass by a church and observe the crowds, states the Printed Word, Toronto. People really are going to church, to all kinds of churches. Even places with uncomfortable seats or dull pastors receive their quota.

Attendance at a church service does not necessarily mean that a church is flourishing in the way it should flourish. It does not necessarily mean that the members of the congregation are experiencing a spiritual flux, that they love their fellow man and that they have committed themselves exclusively to good works. But attendance at a church service does indicate that they are wrong who say that the churches are empty.

And if they are wrong on that point, they may also be wrong in their criticism that this is a shallow age, bereft of spiritual emotion. The continual rebuffs to which faith in these days is subjected does not necessarily mean that there is no faith left. Cruelty and downright badness can walk unhindered over much of the world, but that is no clear proof that nothing remains of virtue. It may only prove that man's intellectual deliberations cannot be entirely depended upon to produce solutions to problems.

People who have found that they can put no trust in the Nine Power Treaty and who have found that government management of business does not avoid stock market crashes are apt to delve deeper for their assurances.

Discoverer Of New Worlds

Professor Pickering Was Outstanding Astronomer Of Modern Times. The world has lost one of the greatest explorers of modern times. Prof. William H. Pickering. Few laymen may have heard of Pickering, but as the outstanding astronomer of his time he discovered, not new continents, but new worlds. More than any individual, the man who for 30 years lived at the Harvard Observatory at Mandeville, Jamaica, gave an impetus to the science of the stars.

Back in 1890 Pickering discovered the planetoid, Phoebe. In 1909 he wrote a book, "A Search for a Planet Beyond Neptune." It was largely speculation, but he was convinced that the solar system's machinery was not running according to schedule and that only another planet exerting its force on the known worlds could be responsible. In 1919, after further study, he became mathematically certain of its existence. He plotted its course and probable location. At the same time the late Dr. Percival Lowell was working on the same idea. Then in 1929 Pluto was found. It was but a degree and a half from where Pickering had placed it and five to six degrees from where Lowell had figured its position.

Pickering was one of the first astronomers to organize distant expeditions to observe solar and lunar eclipses. His passion for mountain climbing was another indication of the explorer in him. His work for science was solid and lasting.

Whiskers and lines of wisdom all ways went with the popular conception of tonight chess players until dimpled Elaine Saunders, age 12, came along.

She likes the company of grown-ups rather than children, and thinks a lot of games one has to play at parties are silly. Her ambitions are to become an air pilot and own a riding school. She doesn't like party frocks because a person usually catches a cold and has to have medicine and doctors.

Five Thousand Shops Are Still Operating In The Dominion

In view of the advent of the automobile and the farm tractor, it may seem surprising to learn that there are even now some 5,000 blacksmith shops still operating in the Dominion, but such is the case, and the village boy still has an advantage over his less-favored city cousin. In the cities of over 30,000 population there are only 300 of these shops, while there are more than 4,000 in the rural areas, and over 1,000 in the villages and small places—Kitchener Record.

With Britain and the United States both engaged in rearmament programs, one of the features of naval construction is the return of the battleship. ## AN EDUCATIONAL MESS

Premier Aberhart apparently could not spare the time to attend the convention of School Trustees in Calgary recently. It would also appear that he cannot be spending much of his time in administering the affairs of the Department of Education of which he is the head. At least that would appear to be the logical conclusion following the mess which Grade X students are now in as a result of departmental inefficiency. The minister's attitude towards education as a whole may be said to be purely negative. Indeed it is hard to understand how he, in the midst of his constant electroneering campaign, can do justice to the office which he assumed.

After spending more than one half of the school year in pursuit of the requisite number of credits in Grade X, students in high school, where there is only one teacher, are suddenly confronted with the ruling of an inspector that a four-year schedule is required for the work of Grades X to XII inclusive, which formerly took three years. The department added such a tremendous amount of additional work on the student (most of it frills at that) that it now finds there is not sufficient instructional time available to enable the student to get reasonable instruction. It therefore adopts the very simple expedient of adding on another year to the student's high school life.

Apparently but little thought is given by these educational moguls to the cost on parents' and taxpayers' alike of carrying these pupils through school for an additional year or two. In fact they have become so callous on the subject, and so set in the pursuit of their objectives, that it is just about time that reasonable bodies raised some protest on quite a few objectionable features of our educational system, not the least of which would be the domination of the department by the A.T.A., the rising cost of education in Alberta, and a few polite enquiries into the business of text books and school supplies.—Bassano Recorder.

MAN'S COMPARATIVE VALUE

It's one of those things that makes us wonder what's the matter with human reasoning, but it's in the news for us to conjure with as we will. Attend On an ice floe off Greenland four Russian natural scientists are drifting; as the floe disintegrates, their dangers increase. Other efforts by other nations have been made to succor them, but the latest is announced today from Oslo, Norway, as the Government radios orders to coast stations in East Greenland to start immediately with dog sled and provisions in an attempt at rescue. Four men on an ice floe, and nations turn their best efforts toward saving them. But in Japan and Spain new battlefields are carved out in the day's fighting, and what is described as a "veritable butchery" goes on. By what process of reasoning does mankind arrive at the apparent conclusion that men are less worth saving from the dangers of war than from the dangers of the arctic ice?—Christian Science Monitor.

Before marriage a man declares he will be master of his house or know the reason why. After marriage he knows the reason why.

A QUEER OUTFIT

The proverbial hell in a china shop is a mild creature compared with the present Alberta government. Here we have an administration sworn to uphold British ideals, and yet it goes merrily on its way breaking down at every opportunity the faith of the people in the institutions which have been built up over long centuries, institutions which time has proven essential to the maintenance of the liberty of the subject.

The spectacle of the administration trying to set aside the findings of our courts in the Powell-Uwinn libel case is merely the culmination of a series of acts which have been aimed at British rule. The outstanding example of un-British legislation was, of course, the act passed last regular session designed to prevent an appeal to the courts in Alberta without consent of the attorney-general. But that was merely a companion piece to the press gag and the attempts to take control of banking out of the hands of federal authorities. It is of a piece with the legislature's action on the Recall Act, passed with such a flourish at the first session of the Social Credit legislature, to make the will of the people supreme, and wiped off the statutes so unceremoniously when it threatened to lop the head off the premier. The effort to set aside Alberta courts and set up an Aberhart dictatorship is further shown by the desire of a number of the premier's satellites to do away with the Mounted Police and set up an Alberta police force of storm troopers to enforce the Aberhart will upon the people at the point of a gun.

We doubt very much whether the majority of the Alberta people who voted for the Aberhart promises in 1935 are content to allow this government to continue on its way, teaching and encouraging lawlessness. We are a law-abiding people, who believe in freedom and have a high respect for our courts. The un-British and autocratic government of which Mr. Aberhart is the head is far from the Alberta ideal.—Lethbridge Herald.

POOR LITTLE TURKS

The schoolgirls of Turkey are in for a dull time if the Association of Head Masters and Head Mistresses has its way, observes Cap Argus. According to his recommendations, no girl may go to the cinema except with an adult relative; she may talk to no young man in the street except her brother, and if any swain attempts to talk to her the affront should be reported to parents or the head master forthwith. One might be tempted to think that Pasha Grundy or his wife combed the statutes of Oxford for their list of prohibitions. In Oxford still, no doubt, the proctors ask politely to be introduced to any damsel with whom an undergraduate is seen in public converse. All this, of course, is done to protect the male from the predations of the intriguing sex, and it would be little wonder if Turks, with their queer inversions, had simply reversed the rules in a mistaken effort to shield scheming girls from innocent men.—New Glasgow Free Lance.

There is no substitute for printing but printing. Mimeographing is no nearer printing than is typewriting. We purchased a tag a couple of days ago that seemed to have suffered the onslaught of a rubber stamp. It was mimeographed, and fifty per cent of it was not readable.

The break in the weather on Wednesday of this week was sure welcome, following two weeks of the sub-zero brand; accompanied by heavy winds and snow falls. Snow came so continuously that the town and provincial plows had to be kept going daily to keep roads and streets open to traffic. It is estimated that snow on the level measures at least four feet in depth, and in many places drifts can be seen to a height of fully eight feet. At Fernie, it is claimed, they have the most snow in many years, reminding one of the old days.

Consider the editor. A child is born unto the wife of a merchant in the town. The physician getteth 'tween plunks. The editor writeth a sick and a half and telleth the multitude that the child tippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yes, he lieth even as a centurion. And the proud father giveth him a Cremo.

Behold, the young one groweth up and groweth, and the editor putteth into his paper a swell notice. He telleth of the wisdom of the young woman and of her exceeding comeliness. Like unto the Rose of Sharon is she, and her gown is played up to beat the band. And the dressmaker getteth two score and four iron men. And the editor gets a sweet little note from the girl graduate.

And the daughter goeth on a journey. And the editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar with a picture postal card that's six for a jilt.

Behold she returneth, and the youth of the town fall down and worship. She picketh one, and lo—she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto the editor a bid to the wedding, and behold the bids are fashioned in a far city.

Flowers' and long is the wedding notice which the editor printeth. The minister getteth 10 bones. The groom standeth the editor off for an 18 months' subscription.

All flesh is grass, and in time the wife is gathered unto the soil. The minister getteth his bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the head and the darn thing cometh out "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place."

And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeth on the editor with exceeding great jumps. And they pulleth out their aids and cancellleth their sub, and they swing the hammer even unto the third and fourth generation.—Peeper Box.

The Calgary Albertan, which Mr. Aberhart's followers were supposed to have bought, now labels itself an "independent" newspaper. Apparently the Social Credit magicians were not able to conjure up the money needed to complete the deal. The Albertan still advertises a "Social Credit supplement" as part of its Saturday edition. One wonders if that part of the paper is to be exempt from the "independent" attitude. The Albertan admits that "labels have little meaning" and it asks its readers to watch its "day-to-day performance" for evidences of independence. It will take a good deal of day-to-day independence for the Albertan to live down some of the abusive editorials it published when it was proud to be Mr. Aberhart's personal organ.—Christian Science Monitor.

FIND ANCIENT CLOTH

Explorers in the mountain caves of the Swiss Lake Dwellers, who lived ten thousand years ago, have discovered pieces of cloth that are older than written history. Although obtaining such an early start, cloth-making remained for thousands of years one of the least progressive of industries. Up to 1500 years ago, the only known methods of spinning were by the handwheel, or by the still more primitive distaff and spindle. But ever since 1767, when the Lancashire weaver, Hargreaves, invented the Spinning Jenny, tremendous technical improvements have been taking place. Today, textile manufacturing stands as one of the most progressive and up-to-date of industries.

Two years after Hargreaves brought out his Spinning Jenny, a Derbyshire baronet, appreciated by the name of Arkwright patented a roller spinner and set up a water mill to make cotton goods. Six years later, Chompton, of Bolton, combined these inventions in a machine that was called the Mule. Most of the succeeding innovations have been broadly based on the principle of the Spinning Jenny and the Roller Spinner.

The first machines set up on the North American continent were in New England in 1783. The Canadian industry got under way at a little later date, but compared to any other manufacturing industry in this country, our cotton textile business is relatively very old.

At the present time there are 100 production establishments operating in seven provinces. Although the main concentration is in Quebec and Ontario, manufacture is also carried on in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia. Over 21,000 people are directly employed, of which 36 per cent are women. Many more thousands find work in supplying materials of Canadian origin, such as rayon yarns, starches, rubber thread, dyestuffs, bleaches, chemical oils, spools, tubes and packing materials. Supplying the industry with machinery, building and heating materials and transportation services, provides occupation for a further large class of wage earners. These direct and indirect employees of the cotton textile industry form a large body of consumers of Canadian farm and other products both from the East and West.

Since 1902 the total domestic market for cotton cloth has gradually increased, and the production of the mills has also increased. Due, however, to successive duty reductions, the Canadian mills have lost ground as compared to imports, the rates on cotton goods coming into Canada now being lower than those of any other important cotton manufacturing country in the world.

LUNCHEON FISH RECIPE

Canadian Fish and Cheese Casserole: Place layer of cooked peas or cooked spinach in the bottom of a large, shallow, greased baking dish. Place on the vegetables a layer of any variety of Canadian fish, using either slices of fish or fillets cut into suitable serving portions. Sprinkle salt and pepper and cooking oil over the fish. Place the dish in a hot oven for six or eight minutes. Then having a cheese sauce ready, pour it over the fish, sprinkle with fine bread crumbs, dotted with butter, and put the dish back into the oven until the top is nicely browned. The cheese sauce may be made as follows: Melt two tablespoons of butter, blend with it two tablespoons of flour, add cup of liquid (a cup of milk or of milk and vegetable water combined); cook the mixture until it is thick and smooth, stirring constantly, and just before removing it from the stove add half cup of grated Canadian cheese and continue to stir the sauce until the cheese is melted.

Canadian fish are rich in vitamins and health-building minerals and, having regard to nutritive value, are among the most nourishing of foods.

In supreme court at Calgary this week, Verlie Elizabeth Silcocks, of Abersychan, Mons, England, obtained her final decree of divorce against her husband, Robert E. Silcocks, of Hillcrest Mines, Alberta. In the decree nisi which was granted some time ago, the wife obtained custody of the one child, of the marriage, maintenance and costs.

Legh A. Walsh, K.C. of Calgary, son of the late Hon. William Legh Walsh, former lieutenant-governor of Alberta and supreme court judge, died suddenly at Victoria on Saturday last. The remains were brought to Calgary, where interment took place on Tuesday afternoon, Ven. Archbishop Swanson and Rev. Dean Ragg officiating. Mr. Walsh was one of Alberta's most prominent lawyers.

A.—The security of the individual loans, in addition to the integrity of the borrowers—whether governments, corporations, or individuals.

Q.—Why are premiums called savings?

A.—Because, year after year, they build up the fund out of which payments to policyholders and beneficiaries are made.

Q.—How much of this money is paid out to policyholders and beneficiaries in Canada?

A.—Half a Million Dollars every business day.

Productive Investment

FOR EVERY ONE of the seven thousand employees of Dominion Textile Company Limited, there is invested an average amount of more than four thousand dollars in land, buildings and machinery. This investment is productive. When it was first made, it created employment for workers in the building trades, for employees in machinery factories, for transportation workers and many others. It continues to be productive because it has been converted into cards, spindles, looms and other implements of production that are operated by wage-earners.

CANADIAN CUSTOMERS as well as employees of the Company have shared the benefits of this investment. By buying improved machinery as it has been developed, the Company has been able to reduce the working hours and increase the wages of its employees. At the same time, the improvements in machinery have increased production and lowered costs, and these savings have been passed on to consumers in lower prices for cotton and rayon goods.

INVESTMENT in Dominion Textile Company Limited may be measured in dollars and cents, but it does not exist as sterile money. It is in the form of buildings and machinery which make jobs for your fellow Canadians who make textiles for you.

PAY 50.00—GET $1.00

Paying $5.00 and getting $1.00 in return is too heavy a load against any class of the community, yet that tells the story of how the motorist has been taking it on the chin, almost since the day the automobile became a recognized means of transportation. One need not point to Alberta, as the horrible example but it happens to be a province from which at the moment figures are available.

In its financial year which ended last March it drew a net revenue of $2,219,725 from the fuel oil tax. Its motor vehicle branch collected $1,424,987 from license fees on motor cars and trucks. On top of this it took in another $121,739 for driver's licenses.

The 54,000 automobiles in Alberta are paying a good big tax for the privilege of travelling on Alberta roads. If it is a sound principle that every service should pay for itself, the Alberta motorist is not getting anything in the way of a fair deal.

The money which is taken from him as a road tax does not go into roads at all. Against the $3,764,000 taken from him, only a little more than $600,000 was spent in the same year on highways.

Aberhart sees indignation displayed by the people of the province of Alberta over the alleged "cruel" treatment of J. H. Unwin and George F. Powell, who received sentences of three months and six months, respectively, for publication of defamatory libel. There is no sign of such indignation in this part of his province, but it's great capital to work upon an innocent few.

It was not generally known that one of the victims of the recent tragedy at Clarendon was registered at the Mount Baker hotel at Cranbrook on the night of January, the 25th. On the register on that date was written "C. B. ## LOCAL AND GENERAL ITEMS

Two prisoners in Lethbridge jail are asking the appeal court to increase their sentences. They want to go to the pen to learn trades. Probably that's what Powell and others go to the pen for. Experts always have something to learn.

Advertising in a general way over the radio on Sundays is being banned. Then why should Aberhart be allowed to continue advertising his mouthpiece over the radio on Sunday afternoons when fans are looking for programmes suited to the day?

About twenty-five Social Credit members of the Alberta government visited friends at the Fort Saskatchewan jail on Sunday last. They may visit Prince Albert or Lethbridge penitentiaries later, if they have any friends there.

The rapture came to pass! Nearly three years with Aberhart and his party, and the dream of a gift of $25 a month is as much a dream as ever. Port of the rapture is The Albertan forsaking support of Social Credit and its principles.

GRAIGAVON GAINS TWO SEATS IN IRISH ELECTIONS

Belfast.—With all counting in the general election completed with the exception of the four-member constituency of Queen's University, Viscount Craigavon's Unionist government was returned stronger than before.

It did not lose a seat and gained two. Its 21 victories, with 14 acclamations on nomination day, gave it 85 seats. In the last house the government held 57 seats, including four Queen's University seats.

In Dublin, Prime Minister Eamon de Valera declared the Northern Ireland general election returns gave nothing as far as Eire is concerned, and that the first question that would press at the next Anglo-Irish conference would be that of unification.

Belfast celebrated with band processions, parades and the customary clashes among excited partisans. From his official residence, Stormont Castle, Lord Craigavon declared the result definitely and finally settled that Northern Ireland will not exchange its unity with the United Kingdom for unity with Eire.

The Unionist (Conservative) sweep tumbled the leaders of three opposition parties, all in Belfast constituencies. Home Minister Sir James Craig, who led a revolt with the other cabinet ministers not returned by acclamation, was victor in a three-cornered contest in Belfast's Victoria division.

The defeated leaders were William J. Stewart, who led a revolt with Lord Craigavon's son, and organized the Progressive Union group; W. M. Wilson, Independent Unionist leader, and Harry Midgley, head of the Labor party.

Mr. Stewart was defeated in the Cromac division of Belfast, losing to J. Maynard Sinclair, Unionist, by 5,532 votes. In 1929, the last contested election in Cromac, the Unionist majority over an independent candidate was 1,000. In 1933 the Unionist were unopposed.

German Army Shakeup

Reports Say Three Generals Have Offered Their Resignations

Berlin.—Diplomatic quarters heard reports three generals offered their resignations in protest against Nazification of the German army and wondered whether there are many discontented higher officials.

Observers familiar with Chancellor Hitler's tactics said all necessary precautions against army opposition naturally were taken before the Chancellor embarked on his drastic shakeup of the army high command and the foreign office.

Meanwhile, Nazi party headquarters, with Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police, as the prime mover, was said to be preparing an order for "Nazification" of the army. It was reported the order would eliminate chaplains from the army, make the Nazi salute obligatory, compel recruiting of future young officers to men who attended Nazi party institutions of learning; and place a political commission on each army staff.

Fast Plane Flight

Flow From Edinburgh To London At Speed Of 400 Miles Per Hour

London.—A Royal Air Force Hurricane fighter plane flew from Edinburgh to London at the approximate speed of 400 miles an hour.

Squadron Leader John W. Gillan took off from Turnhouse airfield, Edinburgh, and landed at Northolt airfield, near London, 48 minutes later. Officials claimed it was the first flight in darkness at a speed over 300 m.p.h.

It was announced Squadron Leader Gillan bettered the world record for land planes, held by Germany at 379.17 m.p.h.

Wildcats To Continue Search

Edmonton.—The next area to be covered in the hunt for six Soviet flyers who disappeared during a flight from Moscow to North America will be the Alaskan mountain ranges, Sir Hubert Wilkins, commander of the Russian plane conducting the search, told a service club.

British Navy Recruits

London.—Recruits for the Royal Navy averaged 1,154 monthly last year as compared with 871 per month in 1936 and 624 monthly in 1935, Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, announced in a written reply to a question in the House of Commons.

Decide On New Course

Plan Would Withdraw Foreign Volunteers From Spain

London.—Foreign Secretary Eden was believed to have decided on a new course to obtain withdrawal of foreign volunteers in Spain and approach more cordial relationship with Italy in one diplomatic sweep.

It was reported the foreign secretary will shelve discussion of Spanish belligerency rights temporarily to make progress on other angles of the problem.

Britain and France, diplomatic quarters said, now aim to convince Premier Mussolini a government victory would not mean Bolshevikism in Spain. The argument is that Spanish Communists are not likely to control the Socialist administration of Dr. Juan Negrin.

Thus, these quarters stated, Mussolini will have an opportunity to withdraw his blackbirds and let the Italian people be fulfilled his aim in saving Spain from Bolshevikism.

Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, told commons the government believes measures taken to counteract the renewed outbreak of piratical attacks on British shipping in the Mediterranean will have the desired effect.

Anarchy in China

Banditry Causing A Lot Of Trouble For Japanese Army

Shanghai.—A grave state of anarchy and lawlessness was reported straining authority of Japanese in north China while their armies struggled to conquer a vast area of central China along the Langkat railroad.

Despatches from Tientsin said that after the Japanese evicted Chinese officials in captured north China provinces, these areas relapsed into banditry and civic disorder.

It was reported conditions had become intolerable for peasants who did not flee from their homes during the Japanese invasion and that marauding bands were preying on the countryside.

Japanese authorities in Tientsin charged Communist agents were active in stirring up the people to unprecedented anarchy.

Japanese troops were said to be mopping up banditry and alleged Communist guerrilla bands between Tientsin and Paofoingfu. Authorities have tried to persuade them to surrender and, according to Chinese reports, 100,000 of them agreed to do so.

Reports said 80,000 others, mostly former Chinese militia, homeless peasants and professional bandits, were holding out. Chinese and Japanese authorities offered rewards for firearms and the heads of alleged outlaw leaders.

French Are Pleased

Say Coming Visit Of British Sovereign Omen Of Peace

Paris.—In a chorus of praise for Great Britain, its royal family and the bonds of friendship that extends across the English Channel, the French press heralded the coming visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth as an omen of peace and strength.

The state visit is set for late June, when King George will dedicate the Australian war memorial at Villers-Bretonneux and be the guest of President Albert Lebrun in Paris.

A sidelight was the possibility of a meeting in France between George VI and his elder brother, the Duke of Windsor. One newspaper suggested the brothers "in order to avoid the curious, may meet secretly outside the capital."

French Flying Boat Wrecked

Eight Persons Killed When Airliner Crashed Into Breakwater

Marseille, France.—Eight persons were killed and four injured in the crash of an Air France flying boat against the Marseille breakwater at the takeoff. The trans-Mediterranean airliner was starting its scheduled flight to Corsica, on the Marseille-Tunis run. It hurtled against the breakwater at 60 miles an hour and burst into flames.

Air France announced the dead were five passengers and three of the crew. Two passengers and two of the crew were injured. All the dead were French. Officials thought pilot probably failed to see the breakwater through morning fog and mist.

Slot Machines Barred

North Bay, Ont.—City council has decided to instruct the police commission to have all slot machines removed from North Bay by March 1. License fees for the machines brought $1,500 to the city treasury last year but council decided to forego the money to rid the city of what it termed an "undesirable gambling influence."

Taking Important Part

U.S. Volunteer Pilots Said To Be Aiding China

Hankow, China.—Chinese sources asserted United States volunteer pilots were taking important parts in China's attempts to rebuild her air defenses against Japanese invasion.

This disclosure came as Japanese bombing squadrons, apparently in retaliation for a Chinese air attack in which Americans were said to have taken part, raided Hankow, temporary capital of China. One Japanese raider was shot down.

Chinese military despatches said the "foreign legion" played an important role in operations along the Hwai river, northeast of Hankow, now China's major battlefront. There pilots flying highspeed bombers made in the United States were said to have blasted so effectively at Japanese artillery positions and troop concentrations that Chinese fighters for the first time in the seven-month-old war was able to advance with support of its own air force.

PLANS FOR CHEAP LOW COST HOMES ARE ANNOUNCED

Ottawa.—This year's crop of new, low-cost homes will probably feature conventional lines as a result of Dominion Housing Act minimum cost house competition in which the winners were announced. None of the moderate, flat-roofed types were chosen.

From 300 designs entered by architects in every province the judges selected 10 which will be completed with full working plans to be made available at a cost to meet the budget of even the most humble builder.

Winners in the contest will receive $250 each when the plans are completed and turned over to the government, and the plans will then be sold to prospective builders at $10 each.

The designs were for houses to cost not more than $2,500 in British Columbia or $3,000 elsewhere in Canada, insulated, containing three bedrooms, living-room, dining-space, kitchen, bath and bathroom. Winners in the contests were architects and firms in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

Gable roofs predominated in the designs chosen, with some mansard and "hip" roofed models, and extreme simplicity was the keynote of all. Materials to be used were left to the option of the builder.

In some instances provision was made for one bedroom on the ground floor with the dining room or alcove combined either with living room or kitchen. Only one or two plans provided verandas or patios.

The finished plans will be available to any person wishing to buy, whether it is proposed to build under the Housing Act or otherwise.

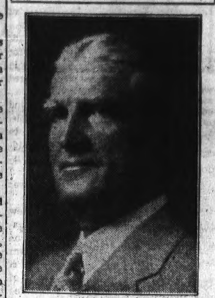

Following are the winners: Forsey, Page and Steele; Greenides and Langley (two designs); and Douglas E. Kirkland, all of Toronto; Paul Rousseau and A. H. Tremblay, Quebec; Edward Cecil Cox and T. H. Mace, Montreal; Alvin Ronald Peck, Hamilton, Ont.; and Harold Culbert, Vancouver.

$125,000 GIFT TO SEND SCHOOLBOYS TO CANADA

With Earl Baldwin as its patron, a $125,000 trust has been established by a Bradford, England, business man, to give fifty schoolboys a month's visit to Canada every year for ten years. The donor, Mr. Walter Rhodes, is seen above signing the trust at Grenovener House, London, watched by some of the Trustees. Mr. Rhodes brought Bradford boys to Canada last year as a Coronation gift.

Britain's Food Supply

Says Suggestions For Storing Two Years' Supply Is Fantastic

London.—Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for co-ordination of defence, declared Labor suggestions for storing two years' food supply for use in case of emergency were fantastic.

He said the government should periodically, secretly if possible, make purchases of food supplies according to the needs of the situation. It was undesirable, he argued, to put large quantities of foodstuffs into ports liable to attack.

"For ton, and ship for ship, we are substantially in as good a position to-day as in 1914," Sir Thomas told the house in opposing a Labor resolution criticizing the minister as having done nothing to relieve the country's anxiety in regard to food supplies.

The house defeated 195 to 130 the Labor proposal that large stocks of food be stored in the country.

Debate Power Export

Opportunity To Be Given For Members To Discuss Question

Ottawa.—Notice of a bill to amend the Electricity and Fluid Exportation Act was placed on the House of Commons agenda in the name of Prime Minister King.

This will give opportunity for the parliamentary discussion on power export, promised by Mr. King last December.

It is understood the purpose of the measure will be to require that licenses for the export of power may be granted only by parliament. Under the present act the governor-in-council may grant such licenses.

Several months ago when Premier Hopburn of Ontario approached the Dominion government for a license to export power from a license to United States, Mr. King and his colleagues decided no further licenses would be granted until there had been an expression of the will of parliament on power export.

Storm In Cape Breton

Sydney, N.S.—Cape Breton Island was in the throes of the heaviest storm in five years as a 42-mile gale whipped snow into huge drifts.

Invitation Accepted

King George And Queen Elizabeth To Visit France This Summer

London.—The king and queen will visit France for four days this summer, marking the first state visit by Their Majesties to a foreign country since their accession.

The king and queen have accepted with much pleasure an invitation from the president of the French republic to pay a state visit to Paris from June 28 to July 1. During his stay the king will unveil the Australian national war memorial at Villers-Bretonneux.

In making the unveiling the king will be following the example of his brother, the Duke of Windsor, who as King Edward VIII. went to France to unveil the Canadian memorial at Vimy Ridge on July 26, 1936.

As the Duke and Duchess of York the king and queen twice visited Paris—in July, 1931, for the Colonial exposition, and again in November, 1935, on the occasion of the annual dinner given by the Caledonian Society of France. Both peak fluent French.

Dakota Farmers Need Loan

Willing To Try Agria For Crop If Seed Purchased

Crookby, N.D.—Farmers of a drought-ridden five county area in northwest Dakota would gamble on their labor against the elements again this year, if the government provided a stake of close to $2,000,000 for seed and protection loans.

C. H. Lockmire, district supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, estimated at least four out of five farmers in the area would need loans of $300 each to purchase seed, tractor fuel or feed for horses. "If moisture comes and the pests don't get us, we'll make a crop," the farmers say.

SEES RETURN OF GOOD CROPS WITH NORMAL RAINFALL

Ottawa.—The only thing wrong with Saskatchewan's drought area was lack of rain, said Dr. Thomas Donnelly (Eds. Wood Mountain) during the throne speech debate in the House of Commons. He protested against statements made in different circles to the effect conditions in the dry sections of the prairies were due to farming methods.

The drought area was not confined to Canada. It spread over many states of the American union and extended into Mexico. Last year the area was restricted on the edges as compared with previous years, but the drought in the centre of the area became more intense than ever before. There was practically no growth at all.

Dr. Donnelly said all signs pointed to a further restriction of the area next year. It appeared the country was gradually coming back to conditions of normal rainfall and normal production.

Most of the farmers in the drought area had settled there with no worldly goods, he explained. Over a period of 20 years they had enjoyed reasonably good crops and many of them had built up assets of $10,000 to $20,000. It was impossible to ask those men, now 40 to 65 years old, to leave their homes and the land they know would produce crops if rain came and carve out new homes for themselves elsewhere. They would not do it.

"I would like to say this to the government," he said. "It is justified in helping the old settlers remain on the land, but it is not justified in helping young men settle or start farming there. Young men should be encouraged to go elsewhere and start farming where prospects are better."

Dr. Donnelly said the old settlers had faith in the land and he shared it. There would be rains there again and there would be good crops again. Stock died in Saskatchewan last fall and early winter because feed was not shipped to the drought area soon enough, it was charged by E. E. Perley (Cons. Qu'Appelle). He blamed the federal government.

In some sections of Saskatchewan 30 per cent of the horses were reported dead or dying from starvation early in January, Mr. Perley said. Some farmers charged the Saskatchewan government with deliberately stalling in feed payments to save interest, he said.

Mr. Perley favored a control board for the western wheat industry. There were control boards for railways, radio, power and various other industries and he could see no objection to a grain control board.

ROUMANIA NOW UNDER A VIRTUAL DICTATORSHIP

Bucharest.—Dr. Miron Cristea, patriarch of the Roumanian Orthodox Church, became premier of Roumania after the anti-Semitic cabinet of Premier Octavian Goga resigned.

The 68-year-old church head, who at first refused King Carol's plea to take over the government, formed a cabinet of Centre and Liberal orientation which will rule without parliament.

He became a virtual dictator. Special parliamentary elections, scheduled for March 2, were cancelled and all party activities were suspended temporarily. The constitution was placed in abeyance.

Pending the formulation of a new constitution the government will be ruled by decree.

Dr. Cristea's cabinet, which included seven former premiers, took its oath of allegiance before the king. Among those reported to have accepted portfolios in Roumania's rapidly changing regime were:

Goga was reported to have declined offer of a post, saying he wanted to travel abroad.

Juliu Maniu, powerful leader of the National Peasant party, was understood not to be in the cabinet though he had been offered a post, but had earlier assured Carol he would support a coalition government.

Carol prevailed upon the patriarch to reconsider his initial refusal to head the regime when Dr. Cristea was informed 64-year-old Mironescu, three times premier, had a list of ministers practically ready.

Collapse of Goga's government, brought on by his pro-Fascist program and an economic recession during his six weeks in office, occasioned this report in Roumania.

Economics and anti-Semitism were considered reasons of equal importance for the Goga downfall. Since Goga took office Dec. 28, 1937, stock exchange shares have fallen as much as 50 per cent.

Plans to increase taxes caused sales to drop and capital to flee the country. Jews and Christians alike refused to start new enterprises. The cost of living rose but prices to farmers dropped.
